

THE GAZETTE.

FRIDAY, MARCH 30.

THE PRICE OF DISHONESTY.

Political fame is ephemeral. John T. Hoffman, who was twice governor of New York and at one time was mentioned in connection with the presidency, died abroad, almost forgotten, a few days ago, and the only "send-off" he got was three or four lines in the newspapers.—Chicago Journal.

The fate of John T. Hoffman is the fate of every man who has anything to do with the Tweed frauds and the election entanglements in the city of New York in 1871 and 1872. Now that Hoffman is dead, and has been well nigh forgotten, it is well to recall the circumstances which led to his political banishment and moral death.

Mr. Hoffman was nominated for governor of New York in 1870, through the influence of the Tweed ring. The republican candidate was John A. Griswold. The republicans fought a good campaign, and the returns showed that "Griswold" was elected by a large majority. But for some reason, the returns were not returned from the democratic strong hold. Two days passed, and then the vote of New York city and county was announced.

Tilden was then chairman of the state democratic committee, and with the aid of Boss Tweed, managed the democratic campaign. He ordered the democratic returns in the city of New York to be delayed until the returns from the state had been received. This being done, the majority for Griswold being pretty clearly established, Tilden and Tweed knew how many votes to manufacture in the city to give Hoffman the majority. They were manufactured, and Hoffman was declared elected.

Of course this surprised everybody, and Tilden was expected to not to commit such cold-blooded premeditated frauds, but the officials were of no avail. The robbery was complete, and the shame was as black and damning as shame could be.

When an investigation was made into the frauds of that year, it recorded some of the most disgraceful election frauds ever known in this country. They were even worse than the democratic frauds in Ohio, and the democratic frauds in the several states of the south. For instance, take two or three examples. The seventh ward of the city was made to give Hoffman 9,896 votes and Griswold only 1,263, when the entire voting population did not reach the vote counted for the democratic candidate, while the combined vote of Blaine and Cleveland in the same ward sixteen years afterwards, did not reach the vote alleged to have been cast for Hoffman. Then there was the Eleventh ward, which was made to give Hoffman 8,242, when there were not that many voters in the ward, and the aggregate vote of Blaine and Cleveland in 1884 in the same ward was only 6,900! The Seventeenth ward, which is very evenly divided between the parties, was made to contribute 10,863 votes toward the great political crime which sealed the fate of Tweed, Tilden, Hoffman & Company.

These frauds were so glaring and outrageously cold-blooded, that Horace Greeley, who four years afterwards became the democratic candidate for president, wrote Mr. Tilden a letter in regard to them. He appealed to him in the name of all that was sacred in the ballot and in the name of common decency, not to blacken American citizenship in that fashion, but the crime would not be stopped. Students of political history will do well, if they wish to study the record and the spirit of both parties to read Greeley's letter and the history of the frauds to which it relates.

But there has been a turn in the lane, and a young man died in a Troy hospital on Monday who had just fallen heir to $100,000. He was a sewing machine agent.

Ex-Governor Warmoth addressed a republican mass meeting in Monroe, La., a few days ago, at which he told the audience that the best way in which to abolish the bloody shirt and sectional feeling is to give the south a free ballot and a fair count. But the democrats don't believe in abolishing the bloody shirt in that way.

Bayard for chief justice of the United States Supreme court! Can such a thing be in store for the people of this unhappy Republic.—Chicago Tribune.

Don't be surprised. In the language of Ingalls, anything is possible under this administration.

NOTES AND OPINIONS.
Mr. Joshua Jones, who died Saturday in New York, was the largest stockholder in the Chemical National Bank, and a worth $50,000,000, all of which goes to distant relatives. It is related of him that when not long ago his mother died and left him $1,000,000 he mourned it as a burden and a misfortune, but he bravely bore it alone.

Miss Kate Willard, who for several weeks has been the guest of Mrs. Cleveland, has given Washington society a shock. It has leaked out that she is giving music lessons, and for hard cash, too, in a neighboring seminary. The southern element does not take kindly to "teachers," and recently having been made to receive this pretty young woman on false pretenses.

Gilbert B. Towles, a Washington democrat, has withdrawn from a party club at the capital, owing to his disgust with Cleveland, but announces that if any one else is nominated at St. Louis, he will gladly rejoin the club.

In selecting Mr. Dickinson for the postoffice department President Cleveland seems to have hit upon a man eminently fitted for the discharge of important public duties. The postmaster-general is likewise an accomplished politician, and we trust he will use his power and prominence to promote the interests of his party. If democracy is a good thing—and we potentially believe it is—it is the proper work of democratic leaders to keep it at the front.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

It is the Wisconsin delegation finds an emergency which Governor Ruess is needed to meet, there will be no divided opinion about pushing him forward. If such an event should occur, and it should culminate in his nomination, the republicans of the country could make a heavy campaign for his election.—Milwaukee Sentinel.

It is pre-eminently a year in which republicanism succeeds at the polls is probable, as cool, intelligent action, rather than superficial impulse or an indifferent attitude shall prevail. Harmony and well

THE WOMEN'S CONVENTION.

Organization and Law-Making Discussed by the Fair Delegates.

WASHINGTON, March 30.—The morning session of the International Council of Women was opened yesterday with an invocation by Isabella Beecher Hooker, sister of the late Henry Ward Beecher.

Mrs. Matilda Joselyn Gage presided. The topic of the morning was "Organization."

And Mrs. J. J. Ward spoke of the need of a new organization.

She was the first speaker. She was followed by Mrs. Mary Matilda Joselyn Gage.

She was followed by Mrs. Mary Matilda Joselyn Gage.

She was followed by Mrs. Mary Matilda Joselyn Gage.

She was followed by Mrs. Mary Matilda Joselyn Gage.

She was followed by Mrs. Mary Matilda Joselyn Gage.

She was followed by Mrs. Mary Matilda Joselyn Gage.

She was followed by Mrs. Mary Matilda Joselyn Gage.

She was followed by Mrs. Mary Matilda Joselyn Gage.

She was followed by Mrs. Mary Matilda Joselyn Gage.

She was followed by Mrs. Mary Matilda Joselyn Gage.

She was followed by Mrs. Mary Matilda Joselyn Gage.

She was followed by Mrs. Mary Matilda Joselyn Gage.

She was followed by Mrs. Mary Matilda Joselyn Gage.

She was followed by Mrs. Mary Matilda Joselyn Gage.

She was followed by Mrs. Mary Matilda Joselyn Gage.

She was followed by Mrs. Mary Matilda Joselyn Gage.

She was followed by Mrs. Mary Matilda Joselyn Gage.

She was followed by Mrs. Mary Matilda Joselyn Gage.

She was followed by Mrs. Mary Matilda Joselyn Gage.

She was followed by Mrs. Mary Matilda Joselyn Gage.

She was followed by Mrs. Mary Matilda Joselyn Gage.

She was followed by Mrs. Mary Matilda Joselyn Gage.

She was followed by Mrs. Mary Matilda Joselyn Gage.

She was followed by Mrs. Mary Matilda Joselyn Gage.

She was followed by Mrs. Mary Matilda Joselyn Gage.

She was followed by Mrs. Mary Matilda Joselyn Gage.

She was followed by Mrs. Mary Matilda Joselyn Gage.

She was followed by Mrs. Mary Matilda Joselyn Gage.

She was followed by Mrs. Mary Matilda Joselyn Gage.

She was followed by Mrs. Mary Matilda Joselyn Gage.

She was followed by Mrs. Mary Matilda Joselyn Gage.

She was followed by Mrs. Mary Matilda Joselyn Gage.

She was followed by Mrs. Mary Matilda Joselyn Gage.

She was followed by Mrs. Mary Matilda Joselyn Gage.

She was followed by Mrs. Mary Matilda Joselyn Gage.

She was followed by Mrs. Mary Matilda Joselyn Gage.

She was followed by Mrs. Mary Matilda Joselyn Gage.

She was followed by Mrs. Mary Matilda Joselyn Gage.

She was followed by Mrs. Mary Matilda Joselyn Gage.

She was followed by Mrs. Mary Matilda Joselyn Gage.

She was followed by Mrs. Mary Matilda Joselyn Gage.

She was followed by Mrs. Mary Matilda Joselyn Gage.

She was followed by Mrs. Mary Matilda Joselyn Gage.

She was followed by Mrs. Mary Matilda Joselyn Gage.

She was followed by Mrs. Mary Matilda Joselyn Gage.

She was followed by Mrs. Mary Matilda Joselyn Gage.

She was followed by Mrs. Mary Matilda Joselyn Gage.

She was followed by Mrs. Mary Matilda Joselyn Gage.

She was followed by Mrs. Mary Matilda Joselyn Gage.

She was followed by Mrs. Mary Matilda Joselyn Gage.

She was followed by Mrs. Mary Matilda Joselyn Gage.

She was followed by Mrs. Mary Matilda Joselyn Gage.

She was followed by Mrs. Mary Matilda Joselyn Gage.

She was followed by Mrs. Mary Matilda Joselyn Gage.

She was followed by Mrs. Mary Matilda Joselyn Gage.

She was followed by Mrs. Mary Matilda Joselyn Gage.

She was followed by Mrs. Mary Matilda Joselyn Gage.

She was followed by Mrs. Mary Matilda Joselyn Gage.

She was followed by Mrs. Mary Matilda Joselyn Gage.

She was followed by Mrs. Mary Matilda Joselyn Gage.

She was followed by Mrs. Mary Matilda Joselyn Gage.

She was followed by Mrs. Mary Matilda Joselyn Gage.

She was followed by Mrs. Mary Matilda Joselyn Gage.

She was followed by Mrs. Mary Matilda Joselyn Gage.

She was followed by Mrs. Mary Matilda Joselyn Gage.

RIOT IN CHICAGO.

The Striking Switchmen Adopt Desperate Measures.

A BATTLE IN THE ST. PAUL YARDS.

A Train Captured and Destroyed—Plinkerton Men Disarmed, and in Company with New Switchmen and Railroad Officials, Savagely Assaulted.

CHICAGO, March 30.—The anticipated spread of the trouble with the Burlington switchmen occurred yesterday afternoon, when an engine was sent to the Milwaukee & St. Paul yards, as Western avenue and Kinzie streets, to transfer a train of new cars just turned out of the manufacturing.

When the train left Sixteenth street it was strongly guarded by Plinkerton men and no trouble was anticipated. Three of the new "Q" switchmen, and twelve Plinkertons, were on the train.

Mr. John D. Desler, general superintendent, rode in the cab of the engine, which also contained three or four Plinkerton men besides the engine and crew. The rest of the guards were stationed along the cars at intervals.

A great deal of delay was experienced from obstructed tracks and it was about 4 o'clock when the train entered the St. Paul yards. There was an ominous silence from the crowd as the train rumbled along, when suddenly the engine left the track, the result of a misplaced switch. Plinkerton cars were also derailed and the train was brought to a standstill.

By this time the engine was directly in front of the large crowd, which began to cheer and shout, and the Plinkerton men were ordered to get the train hands and apply offensive epithets to the engine and crew.

Some of the hot-heads threw stones, and this was the signal for a rush toward the engine. The windows of the cab were smashed and for a time the fury of the mob seemed to know no bounds.

Two Plinkerton men who were on top of the cars drew their revolvers and began to flourish them. The crowd began to cheer and shout, and the Plinkerton men were ordered to get the train hands and apply offensive epithets to the engine and crew.

Some of the hot-heads threw stones, and this was the signal for a rush toward the engine. The windows of the cab were smashed and for a time the fury of the mob seemed to know no bounds.

Two Plinkerton men who were on top of the cars drew their revolvers and began to flourish them. The crowd began to cheer and shout, and the Plinkerton men were ordered to get the train hands and apply offensive epithets to the engine and crew.

Some of the hot-heads threw stones, and this was the signal for a rush toward the engine. The windows of the cab were smashed and for a time the fury of the mob seemed to know no bounds.

Two Plinkerton men who were on top of the cars drew their revolvers and began to flourish them. The crowd began to cheer and shout, and the Plinkerton men were ordered to get the train hands and apply offensive epithets to the engine and crew.

Some of the hot-heads threw stones, and this was the signal for a rush toward the engine. The windows of the cab were smashed and for a time the fury of the mob seemed to know no bounds.

Two Plinkerton men who were on top of the cars drew their revolvers and began to flourish them. The crowd began to cheer and shout, and the Plinkerton men were ordered to get the train hands and apply offensive epithets to the engine and crew.

Some of the hot-heads threw stones, and this was the signal for a rush toward the engine. The windows of the cab were smashed and for a time the fury of the mob seemed to know no bounds.

Two Plinkerton men who were on top of the cars drew their revolvers and began to flourish them. The crowd began to cheer and shout, and the Plinkerton men were ordered to get the train hands and apply offensive epithets to the engine and crew.

Some of the hot-heads threw stones, and this was the signal for a rush toward the engine. The windows of the cab were smashed and for a time the fury of the mob seemed to know no bounds.

Two Plinkerton men who were on top of the cars drew their revolvers and began to flourish them. The crowd began to cheer and shout, and the Plinkerton men were ordered to get the train hands and apply offensive epithets to the engine and crew.

Some of the hot-heads threw stones, and this was the signal for a rush toward the engine. The windows of the cab were smashed and for a time the fury of the mob seemed to know no bounds.

Two Plinkerton men who were on top of the cars drew their revolvers and began to flourish them. The crowd began to cheer and shout, and the Plinkerton men were ordered to get the train hands and apply offensive epithets to the engine and crew.

Some of the hot-heads threw stones, and this was the signal for a rush toward the engine. The windows of the cab were smashed and for a time the fury of the mob seemed to know no bounds.

Two Plinkerton men who were on top of the cars drew their revolvers and began to flourish them. The crowd began to cheer and shout, and the Plinkerton men were ordered to get the train hands and apply offensive epithets to the engine and crew.

Some of the hot-heads threw stones, and this was the signal for a rush toward the engine. The windows of the cab were smashed and for a time the fury of the mob seemed to know no bounds.

Two Plinkerton men who were on top of the cars drew their revolvers and began to flourish them. The crowd began to cheer and shout, and the Plinkerton men were ordered to get the train hands and apply offensive epithets to the engine and crew.

Some of the hot-heads threw stones, and this was the signal for a rush toward the engine. The windows of the cab were smashed and for a time the fury of the mob seemed to know no bounds.

Two Plinkerton men who were on top of the cars drew their revolvers and began to flourish them. The crowd began to cheer and shout, and the Plinkerton men were ordered to get the train hands and apply offensive epithets to the engine and crew.

Some of the hot-heads threw stones, and this was the signal for a rush toward the engine. The windows of the cab were smashed and for a time the fury of the mob seemed to know no bounds.

Two Plinkerton men who were on top of the cars drew their revolvers and began to flourish them. The crowd began to cheer and shout, and the Plinkerton men were ordered to get the train hands and apply offensive epithets to the engine and crew.

Some of the hot-heads threw stones, and this was the signal for a rush toward the engine. The windows of the cab were smashed and for a time the fury of the mob seemed to know no bounds.

Two Plinkerton men who were on top of the cars drew their revolvers and began to flourish them. The crowd began to cheer and shout, and the Plinkerton men were ordered to get the train hands and apply offensive epithets to the engine and crew.

Some of the hot-heads threw stones, and this was the signal for a rush toward the engine. The windows of the cab were smashed and for a time the fury of the mob seemed to know no bounds.

Two Plinkerton men who were on top of the cars drew their revolvers and began to flourish them. The crowd began to cheer and shout, and the Plinkerton men were ordered to get the train hands and apply offensive epithets to the engine and crew.

Some of the hot-heads threw stones, and this was the signal for a rush toward the engine. The windows of the cab were smashed and for a time the fury of the mob seemed to know no bounds.

Two Plinkerton men who were on top of the cars drew their revolvers and began to flourish them. The crowd began to cheer and shout, and the Plinkerton men were ordered to get the train hands and apply offensive epithets to the engine and crew.

Some of the hot-heads threw stones, and this was the signal for a rush toward the engine. The windows of the cab were smashed and for a time the fury of the mob seemed to know no bounds.

Two Plinkerton men who were on top of the cars drew their revolvers and began to flourish them. The crowd began to cheer and shout, and the Plinkerton men were ordered to get the train hands and apply offensive epithets to the engine and crew.

Some of the hot-heads threw stones, and this was the signal for a rush toward the engine. The windows of the cab were smashed and for a time the fury of the mob seemed to know no bounds.

Two Plinkerton men who were on top of the cars drew their revolvers and began to flourish them. The crowd began to cheer and shout, and the Plinkerton men were ordered to get the train hands and apply offensive epithets to the engine and crew.

Some of the hot-heads threw stones, and this was the signal for a rush toward the engine. The windows of the cab were smashed and for a time the fury of the mob seemed to know no bounds.

Two Plinkerton men who were on top of the cars drew their revolvers and began to flourish them. The crowd began to cheer and shout, and the Plinkerton men were ordered to get the train hands and apply offensive epithets to the engine and crew.

Some of the hot-heads threw stones, and this was the signal for a rush toward the engine. The windows of the cab were smashed and for a time the fury of the mob seemed to know no bounds.

Two Plinkerton men who were on top of the cars drew their revolvers and began to flourish them. The crowd began to cheer and shout, and the Plinkerton men were ordered to get the train hands and apply offensive epithets to the engine and crew.

Some of the hot-heads threw stones, and this was the signal for a rush toward the engine. The windows of the cab were smashed and for a time the fury of the mob seemed to know no bounds.

Two Plinkerton men who were on top of the cars drew their revolvers and began to flourish them. The crowd began to cheer and shout, and the Plinkerton men were ordered to get the train hands and apply offensive epithets to the engine and crew.

Some of the hot-heads threw stones, and this was the signal for a rush toward the engine. The windows of the cab were smashed and for a time the fury of the mob seemed to know no bounds.

Two Plinkerton men who were on top of the cars drew their revolvers and began to flourish them. The crowd began to cheer and shout, and the Plinkerton men were ordered to get the train hands and apply offensive epithets to the engine and crew.

Some of the hot-heads threw stones, and this was the signal for a rush toward the engine. The windows of the cab were smashed and for a time the fury of the mob seemed to know no bounds.

Two Plinkerton men who were on top of the cars drew their revolvers and began to flourish them. The crowd began to cheer and shout, and the Plinkerton men were ordered to get the train hands and apply offensive epithets to the engine and crew.

Some of the hot-heads threw stones, and this was the signal for a rush toward the engine. The windows of the cab were smashed and for a time the fury of the mob seemed to know no bounds.

Two Plinkerton men who were on top of the cars drew their revolvers and began to flourish them. The crowd began to cheer and shout, and the Plinkerton men were ordered to get the train hands and apply offensive epithets to the engine and crew.

Some of the hot-heads threw stones, and this was the signal for a rush toward the engine. The windows of the cab were smashed and for a time the fury of the mob seemed to know no bounds.

Two Plinkerton men who were on top of the cars drew their revolvers and began to flourish them. The crowd began to cheer and shout, and the Plinkerton men were ordered to get the train hands and apply offensive epithets to the engine and crew.

Some of the hot-heads threw stones, and this was the signal for a rush toward the engine. The windows of the cab were smashed and for a time the fury of the mob seemed to know no bounds.

Two Plinkerton men who were on top of the cars drew their revolvers and began to flourish them. The crowd began to cheer and shout, and the Plinkerton men were ordered to get the train hands and apply offensive epithets to the engine and crew.

Some of the hot-heads threw stones, and this was the signal for a rush toward the engine. The windows of the cab were smashed and for a time the fury of the mob seemed to know no bounds.

Two Plinkerton men who were on top of the cars drew their revolvers and began to flourish them. The crowd began to cheer and shout, and the Plinkerton men were ordered to get the train hands and apply offensive epithets to the engine and crew.

Some of the hot-heads threw stones, and this was the signal for a rush toward the engine. The windows of the cab were smashed and for a time the fury of the mob seemed to know no bounds.

Two Plinkerton men who were on top of the cars drew their revolvers and began to flourish them. The crowd began to cheer and shout, and the Plinkerton men were ordered to get the train hands and apply offensive epithets to the engine and crew.

Some of the hot-heads threw stones, and this was the signal for a rush toward the engine. The windows of the cab were smashed and for a time the fury of the mob seemed to know no bounds.

Two Plinkerton men who were on top of the cars drew their revolvers and began to flourish them. The crowd began to cheer and shout, and the Plinkerton men were ordered to get the train hands and apply offensive epithets to the engine and crew.

Some of the hot-heads threw stones, and this was the signal for a rush toward the engine. The windows of the cab were smashed and for a time the fury of the mob seemed to know no bounds.

Two Plinkerton men who were on top of the cars drew their revolvers and began to flourish them. The crowd began to cheer and shout, and the Plinkerton men were ordered to get the train hands and apply offensive epithets to the engine and crew.

Some of the hot-heads threw stones, and this was the signal for a rush toward the engine. The windows of the cab were smashed and for a time the fury of the mob seemed to know no bounds.

Two Plinkerton men who were on top of the cars drew their revolvers and began to flourish them. The crowd began to cheer and shout, and the Plinkerton men were ordered to get the train hands and apply offensive epithets to the engine and crew.

Some of the hot-heads threw stones, and this was the signal for a rush toward the engine. The windows of the cab were smashed and for a time the fury of the mob seemed to know no bounds.

Two Plinkerton men who were on top of the cars drew their revolvers and began to flourish them. The crowd began to cheer and shout, and the Plinkerton men were ordered to get the train hands and apply offensive epithets to the engine and crew.

Some of the hot-heads threw stones, and this was the signal for a rush toward the engine. The windows of the cab were smashed and for a time the fury of the mob seemed to know no bounds.

CORSETS.

OUR SPECIALTY FOR SATURDAY, MARCH 31ST.

THE FOLLOWING WILL BE THE PRICES.

QUALITY UNLIMITED. SIZES UNBROKEN.

An attractive line of standard makes at 29c, worth up to 75c.

All Kinds of

Dry Goods

at Popular Prices.

	Sale Price.	Regular price
Dr. Warner's celebrated Challenge Corsets	45	75
Dr. Warner's celebrated Corset	60	81.00
Dr. Warner's celebrated Four in Hand Corsets	60	1.00
Dr. Warner's celebrated French Model Corsets	60	1.00
Dr. Warner's celebrated Cold Wave Corsets	60	1.00
Dr. Warner's celebrated Health Corsets	75	1.25
Dr. Warner's celebrated Combination Health Corsets	75	1.25
Dr. Warner's Nursing Corsets	75	1.25
Dr. Warner's Abdominal Corsets	75	1.50
Dr. Warner's Health Waist Corsets	1.00	2.00
Dr. Warner's Imported P. D. Corsets	1.00	1.50
Dr. Warner's Imported P. D. Corsets	1.25	2.00
Dr. Warner's Imported P. D. Corsets	1.50	2.50
Dr. Warner's Imported W. B. Corsets	75	1.25
Dr. Warner's Imported W. B. Corsets	1.00	1.50
Dr. Warner's Imported W. B. Corsets	1.25	2.00
Dr. Warner's Imported W. B. Corsets	1.50	2.50
The Gage Down's Popular No. 100, Saton finish	90	1.25
Bonnet d'op Corsets sizes 18 and 19	35	1.00
Also the Popular Wilson waist for children sizes 18 and 19 at	25	60

Don't fail to Attend

the Sale.

ARCHIE REID.

25-CENT SPECIALTIES!

dry.
Pure.
and Soap.
makers
),
Wise-ty-In Oct. and for City of uesday er 2d matter

late y, de-ā for house,
unty,
mber,

and in e and on on ver. A ounty, above earned (24th) EE, at at the June-de and adder gsed k & d udge-a fol-g dec-of the d the eck, ou orth of bereof i with Wis.

 mey.
 th, A.
 w COURT. plain-edant:
 within s, ex-d the dard t will be de-here-N.
 WIS.
 Wis.
 Thomas
 Ainet
 Curvis, Aabit, Alobert

with-sumons, and the reaid;
gment to the N. eys
ss.
TY.—
d Ma-Mary e and from.
ur the on the e 18th
ered.
made on, in ainst h day
e 11th ok of 1863. er for f the which them said of the either day of them

tribed being Stock part or el of y the coniffrie, e-Oe-if the 15th is on y in me of Water eust
the co ex-liver enter lands
John Kim-

man that fol-in waunifin the about Brite east ered and Oeto-
 the 15th on West e the said
 and bore
 and line pond
 J. G.
 me of
 and and M igh black line, me of said

even-lots of
 and Henry
 of the died seven (4), of the piece in the by the
 and on son.
 is.

100

